What is LBSY?

Louisville Beit Sefer Yachad is Louisville's Hebrew/Religious School for children in grades Kindergarten thru 8th grade. It is a collaboration between Congregation Adath Jeshurun, Keneseth Israel Congregation, and Temple Shalom. The school is a community school that is open to all Jewish youth, regardless of synagogue affiliation.

Welcome to LBSY!

"We have been so pleased with the warm and encouraging teachers our son has had in his years at LBSY. He enjoys the friends he's made and his relationship with his teachers, and we're impressed by the breadth of the education he's received even in the school's youngest years, covering not just Hebrew language, Jewish holidays, and religious stories, but also ethics and morals intrinsic to active Jewish life."

Sarah F, Keneseth Israel

"My daughter loves Sunday school which is not something that all kids can say. The teachers really give the kids the foundation for what it means to be Jewish; to strive to make the world a better place, and to share kindness and understanding. We are excited to continue seeing how our daughters grow and learn about what it means to be Jewish at LBSY."

Katy H, Temple Shalom

"Our son had a fantastic introductory year at LBSY. We were on the fence about starting him so young, especially with all the changes that Kindergarten brings, but we are so glad we decided to move him forward. The teachers and staff are extremely nurturing and we are appreciative of the curriculum he is learning at such a young age."

Shannon B, Adath Jeshurun
